Good news!

The Labour College of Canada Certificate Program is back and more accessible, flexible and affordable than ever before. The new program will relaunch in January. Prospective students from CLC-affiliated unions now have until October 29 to submit their applications. The new LCC program continues to offer post-secondary level learning created by, for and with workers and their unions. Courses are offered online and at week-long schools. Students now have more time to complete the program which also gives unions the opportunity to spread the cost over two or three fiscal years. Applications deadline is October 29. If you or someone you know is interested in applying, detailed information along with the application form can be found at labourcollege.ca.
